The Department of Classical Studies offers majors, minors, and courses in three areas: Classical Civilization (p. 1) (CLCV major and minor, CLST course-prefix), ancient Greek (p. 1) (GREK), and Latin (https://catalog.luc.edu/undergraduate/arts-sciences/classical-studies/latin-ba/) (LATN). Greek and Latin courses above the 200-level can be the central part of earning the Classics bachelor's degree distinction. Many Latin, Greek, or Classical Studies courses can fulfill requirements in interdisciplinary programs, like the Rome Studies or Medieval Studies minors. The Department of Classical Studies is part of the College of Arts and Sciences. Please consult their page for more information on degree requirements and policies that affect your majors and minors (e.g., the double dipping policy (https://www.luc.edu/media/lucedu/cas/pdfs/Double%20Dipping%20Policy.pdf)).

Classical Studies Department Policies

Academic Integrity

Policy of the Department of Classical Studies concerning Academic Integrity

The policy of the Department of Classical Studies incorporates the Academic Integrity Statement of the College of Arts and Sciences (https://catalog.luc.edu/undergraduate/arts-sciences/#acaintegrity). (Follow the link to consult this statement directly.) Learning is wholly personal: it only happens if you do it yourself.

Any practice of academic dishonesty (e.g., cheating, plagiarism, obstructing the work of other students) perpetrated in a Classical Studies course will result, at a minimum, in a grade of zero for every assignment in which the dishonesty was practiced. Instructors may impose penalties up to and including failure of the course. Hearing boards constituted by the chairman or the academic dean of the student's college may determine more serious penalties are also appropriate. Expulsion may be recommended if the seriousness of the misconduct warrants it. All instances of academic dishonesty must be reported by the instructor to the chairperson of the department involved, to the Dean of the College of Arts and Sciences, and to the academic dean of the college in which the student is registered. In the case of multiple instances of academic dishonesty, the academic dean of the student's college may convene a hearing board. Students have the right to appeal the decision of the hearing board to the academic dean of their college. The decision of the dean is final in all cases except expulsion. The sanction of expulsion for academic dishonesty may be imposed only by the Provost upon recommendation of a dean.

Students have a right to appeal any finding of academic dishonesty against them. The procedure for such an appeal can be found in the Undergraduate Academic Standards and Regulations (https://catalog.luc.edu/undergraduate-academic-standards-regulations/academic-integrity/); the Department of Classical Studies follows the procedures outlined there. For other types of academic appeals, see Academic Appeals (https://catalog.luc.edu/undergraduate-academic-standards-regulations/academic-appeals/).

The College of Arts and Sciences maintains a permanent record of all instances of academic dishonesty. The information in that record is confidential. A student may, however, be asked to sign a waiver which releases that student's record of dishonesty as a part of the student's application to a graduate or professional school, to a potential employer, to a bar association, or to similar organizations.

Resources and Definitions

For basic principles and definitions of academic integrity, see the subsection on "Academic Integrity" in Loyola University Chicago's General Academic Standards and Regulations (https://catalog.luc.edu/undergraduate-academic-standards-regulations/academic-integrity/). As the College of Arts and Sciences states (see the link above; the next several paragraphs following here reproduce the same document), a basic mission of a university is to search for and to communicate the truth as it is honestly perceived. A genuine learning community cannot exist unless this demanding standard is a fundamental tenet of the intellectual life of the community. Students of Loyola University Chicago are expected to know, to respect, and to practice this standard of personal honesty.

Academic dishonesty can take several forms, including, but not limited to cheating, plagiarism, copying another student's work, and submitting false documents.

Academic cheating is a serious act that violates academic integrity. Cheating includes, but is not limited to, such acts as

- Obtaining, distributing, or communicating examination materials prior to the scheduled examination without the consent of the teacher
- Providing information to another student during an examination
- Obtaining information from another student or any other person during an examination
- Using any material or equipment during an examination without consent of the instructor, or in a manner which is not authorized by the instructor
- Attempting to change answers after the examination has been submitted
- Unauthorized collaboration, or the use in whole or part of another student's work, on homework, lab reports, programming assignments, and any other course work which is completed outside of the classroom
- Falsifying medical or other documents to petition for excused absences or extensions of deadlines
- Any other action that, by omission or commission, compromises the integrity of the academic evaluation process

Plagiarism is a serious form of violation of the standards of academic dishonesty. Plagiarism is the appropriation of ideas, language, work, or intellectual property of another, either by intent or by negligence, without sufficient public acknowledgement and appropriate citation that the material is not one’s own. It is true that every thought probably has been influenced to some degree by the thoughts and actions of others. Such influences can be thought of as affecting the ways we see things and express all thoughts. Plagiarism, however, involves the taking and use of specific words and ideas of others without proper acknowledgement of the sources, and includes the following:

- Submitting as one’s own material copied from a published source, such as print, internet, CD-ROM, audio, video, etc.
- Submitting as one’s own another person’s unpublished work or examination material
- Allowing another or paying another to write or research a paper for one’s own benefit
- Purchasing, acquiring, and using for course credit a pre-written paper

The above list is in no way intended to be exhaustive. Students should be guided by the principle that it is of utmost importance to give proper recognition to all sources. To do so is both an act of personal, professional courtesy and of intellectual honesty. Any failure to do so, whether by intent or by neglect, whether by omission or commission, is an act of plagiarism.

In addition, a student may not submit the same paper or other work for credit in two or more classes without the expressed prior permission of all instructors. A student who submits the same work for credit in two or more classes without the expressed prior permission of all instructors will be judged guilty of academic dishonesty, and will be subject to sanctions described below. This applies even if the student is enrolled in the classes during different semesters. If a student plans to submit work with similar or overlapping content for credit in two or more classes, the student should consult with all instructors prior to submission of the work to make certain that such submission will not violate this standard.

Many websites offer information and strategies by which you can keep yourself clear from plagiarism. For example: Loyola University Writing Center (https://www.luc.edu/writing/index.shtml/), Princeton University (https://odoc.princeton.edu/curriculum/academic-integrity/), and Purdue University (https://owl.purdue.edu/) (follow links at these sites for more useful suggestions).

The Council of Writing Program Administrators (https://www.wpacouncil.org/ aws/CWPA/pt/sp/home_page/) and OnlineEDUCATION.com (http://OnlineEDUCATION.com) offer additional comments and resources, including links, focused especially at helping instructors head off impulses to plagiarism and other forms of intellectual dishonesty in academic work.

Outcome: Students should be able to demonstrate detailed knowledge about the western Church fathers, their works, and the impact of these upon the Church and its teachings.
Interdisciplinary Option: European Studies
Course equivalencies: X-CLST316/THEO316

CLST 318 Transformations of Rome in Late Antiquity (3 Credit Hours)
This course focuses on the City of Rome itself from the third century up to the reign of Charlemagne. It demonstrates that this period was a time of gradual transformation and continuity. Both literary sources and the archaeology and epigraphy of the City shall be combined to show that barbarian invasions did not destroy the walls of Rome, and that the arrival of Christianity did not cause the fall of classical culture.
Interdisciplinary Option: European Studies, German Studies, Rome Studies
Course equivalencies: HIST 339/CLST 318

Outcomes:
Students will be able to demonstrate an understanding of the working of historical mechanisms, evaluate and critically analyze this historical period

CLST 324 Shipwreck Archaeology (3 Credit Hours)
Students study how the technology of scuba diving combined with scientific archaeology has created a new discipline of shipwreck archaeology since the 1960s. They follow the history of the discipline and explore shipwrecks from Bronze Age Greece to nineteenth-century Chicago. Outcome: Students understand the importance of vessels conserved at Skuldelev, Lake Nemi and Uluburun for tracing the development of commerce and technology among the Vikings, the Romans, and the Syro-Palestinians of the Levant. They synthesize the research and conclusions of nautical archaeologists worldwide and organize those findings for presentation to a broader public in the coherent and imaginative form of their own Museum.
Course equivalencies: X-HIST324/MSTU330/ANTH347/CLST324

CLST 328 Pompeii and Herculaneum (3 Credit Hours)
The two best known Roman towns - Pompeii and Herculaneum - whose remains were preserved by the eruption of Mt. Vesuvius in 79 CE - will serve as a microcosm for understanding Roman society. Outcome: Students will gain an understanding of how recent archaeological discoveries have changed our view of Pompeii and Herculaneum and learn to "read" such things as dining and bathing rituals, gladiator games, and public and private architecture to gain insight into the structures of Roman social and cultural life.
Interdisciplinary Option: European Studies
Course equivalencies: HIST328/CLST328/ANTH328

CLST 334 Intro to Classical Archaeology (3 Credit Hours)
This course focuses on the main explorations and achievements in the recovery of monuments of the ancient Greco-Roman world and on the methodologies involved with the discoveries. Outcome: Students should be able to recognize and interpret selected sites and monuments of the Greco-Roman world. They should be able to demonstrate knowledge of methodologies and the technical vocabulary of classical archaeology.
Interdisciplinary Option: European Studies
Course equivalencies: X-ANTH334/CLST334

CLST 334R Introduction to Classical Archaeology - Rome/Italy Focus (3 Credit Hours)
This course focuses on the main explorations and achievements in the recovery of monuments of the ancient Greco-Roman world, particularly in Rome and Italy, and on the methodologies involved with the discoveries. They should be able to demonstrate knowledge of methodologies and the technical vocabulary of classical archaeology.
Interdisciplinary Option: Italian Studies
Course equivalencies: X-ANTH334/CLST334

Outcomes:
Students should be able to recognize and interpret selected sites and monuments of the Greco-Roman world

CLST 340 Classical Arch-Greek Temples (3 Credit Hours)
This course centers on the art and architecture of selected ancient Greek temples and upon the methodologies involved with their study and understanding. Outcome: Students should be able to recognize and interpret selected Greek temples and demonstrate knowledge of the methodologies and technical vocabulary associated with them.
Course equivalencies: X-ANTH340/CLST340

CLST 342 Geography of The Ancient World (3 Credit Hours)
This course focuses on the history of, ideas relating to, and expressions about the geography of the ancient Greco-Roman world as a background for the study of the ancient Mediterranean world. Outcome: Students should be able to demonstrate knowledge of the significant authors, texts, and concepts relating to ancient Mediterranean geography. They should be able to demonstrate good comprehension of technical terms associated with that geography.
CLST 344 Ancient Greek and Roman Coins (3 Credit Hours)
This course centers on the numismatics of the ancient Mediterranean world and upon coins as sources for the history, art, epigraphy and mythology of ancient Greece and Rome. Outcome: Students should be able to recognize, assess and interpret various types of Greek and Roman coins. They should be able to demonstrate good comprehension of technical terms associated with ancient Mediterranean numismatics.

CLST 348 Introduction to Museum Studies (3 Credit Hours)
In collecting, preserving, interpreting, and presenting items of material cultures, as the 20th century recognized and reconsidered, museums function as mass-media, social "tracers" as well as "objects-subjects" for economic and political elaboration. This course introduces students to relevant concerns of objects, conceptualization and communication, scholarship, cultural property, and identity. Outcome: Students will gain understanding of how museums conserve cultural artefacts, serve academic research, educate specialist and non-specialist audiences, and focus social energy in local and touristic communities.

Interdisciplinary Option: Rome Studies

CLST 361 Roman Politi Theory & Practice (3 Credit Hours)
This course investigates the history, scope, principles and components of ancient Roman political institutions from earliest times to that of Justinian. Outcome: Students should be able to explain constituents of Roman civil and legislative procedure, including assemblies, magistracies, courts, etc., as well as the legal appurtenances of those constituents.

Interdisciplinary Option: European Studies, Rome Studies, Sociolegal Studies
Course equivalencies: X-CLST361/ROST361

CLST 362 Roman Law (3 Credit Hours)
This course investigates the history, scope, principles, and components of Roman civil and private law from the archaic period to Justinian's codification. Outcome: Students should be able to explain Roman legal and civil procedure, including the legal concepts of property, the person, family law, and legal obligations and issues, including contracts, civil wrongs, etc.

Interdisciplinary Option: European Studies, Rome Studies, Sociolegal Studies
Course equivalencies: X-CLST362/PLSC371/ROST362

CLST 363 Law&Legislature-Ancient Greece (3 Credit Hours)
This course investigates the history, scope, principles and components of ancient Greek law and legislation from Homeric times through the Classical Period. Outcome: Students should be able to explain Greek legal, civil and legislative procedure, including concepts of justice and due process, as well as legal issues such as inheritance, homicide, etc., especially in Classical Athens.

Interdisciplinary Option: European Studies, Sociolegal Studies

CLST 367 Daily Life in Ancient Greece (3 Credit Hours)
This course constitutes an investigation of the lives of individuals amidst the societies of ancient Greece, including, among other topics, their involvement in religion, politics, education, and their gender-relations. Outcome: Students should be able to demonstrate knowledge of what it was like to be alive and active in ancient Greece, what important issues and concerns affected the ancient Greeks and how these are to be compared and contrasted with their own life issues and concerns.

Interdisciplinary Option: European Studies

CLST 374 Private Life of Ancient Romans (3 Credit Hours)
This course constitutes an investigation of the lives of individuals amidst the society of ancient Rome (and the Roman Empire), including, among other things, their involvements in religion, politics, education, and their gender-relations. Outcome: Students should be able to demonstrate knowledge of what it was like to be alive and active in ancient Rome, what important issues and concerns affected the ancient Romans (and subjects of Rome) individually, and how these are to be compared and contrasted with their own life issues and concerns.

Interdisciplinary Option: European Studies, Rome Studies
Course equivalencies: X-CLST374/ROST374
